PREFACE

The Census of Population 2010 was the fifth census carried out in Singapore since Independence and the fourteenth in the series of census taking in Singapore. The census is the most comprehensive source of information on population and households. It provides benchmark data for all demographic, economic and social statistics.

The Census 2010 adopted a register-based approach, similar to the Census of Population 2000. Basic population count and characteristics were compiled from administrative sources. More detailed information on demographic, education, economic, transport, household and housing characteristics were obtained from a sample enumeration of about 200,000 households.

As in the conduct of the Census 2000, a tri-modal collection strategy comprising Internet, Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews was adopted to facilitate data collection for the households in the census sample. The Census 2010 went paperless during the face-to-face interviews, with the use of Ultra-Mobile Personal Computers (UMPCs) to assist data collection. This data collection methodology brought about savings in manpower, data security in the field, as well as improvements in quality and timeliness of data.

The Census of Population 2010 Statistical Release 1 - Demographic Characteristics, Education, Language and Religion is the first of a series of statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes in the demographic characteristics, education, language and religion of the resident population since 2000. The report includes detailed statistical tables to enable more comprehensive study by users as well as a glossary of census concepts and definitions.

I would like to thank all who have, in one way or another, contributed to the success of Census 2010. My deep appreciation is extended to all participating households who had given their full support to the Census 2010. The contributions of many government ministries and statutory boards, which provided pertinent information for the Census 2010, are gratefully acknowledged.

Introduction

INTRODUCTION

The Census of Population, Singapore's largest national statistical exercise, is conducted once in ten years by the Singapore Department of Statistics. The Census of Population 2010 was the fifth census after Singapore's Independence, and the fourteenth in the series of census taking in Singapore.

The Census of Population 2010 Statistical Release 1 - Demographic Characteristics, Education, Language and Religion is the first of a series of statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes relating to the demographic characteristics, education, language and religion of the resident population since 2000. The report includes detailed statistical tables to enable more comprehensive study by users as well as a glossary of census concepts and definitions.

Census of Population – Concept and Coverage

The Census of Population 2010 adopted the de jure concept for Singapore's population estimates based on a person's place of usual residence. Under the de jure concept of "usual residence", Singapore residents (citizens and permanent residents) with local addresses and who were not away from Singapore for a continuous period of 12 months or longer were included in the total population count. The non-resident population comprising foreigners who were working, studying or living in Singapore but not granted permanent residence were also included in the total population. The transient population such as tourists and short-term visitors was excluded.

Register-based Census of Population

In the register-based Census, the basic population statistics were compiled using administrative records from multiple sources. The merged administrative records provided the basic population count and characteristics such as age, sex, ethnic group, place of birth, type of dwelling and geographic distribution in Singapore.

Sample Enumeration

To collect additional information not available from administrative sources, some 200,000 households were selected to participate in the sample enumeration. Building on the success and lessons learned from the Census of Population 2000, a tri-modal data collection strategy comprising Internet enumeration, Computer Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews was adopted to facilitate data collection for the households in the sample.

The option of Internet enumeration was made available to all households selected for the census sample enumeration. Available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, Internet enumeration provided respondents with the flexibility of responding at any time they desired. It allowed respondents to provide their survey returns directly to the system without having to go through a third party, i.e. the interviewer.

Respondents, who were not able to complete their returns via the Internet, had the option to provide their returns over the phone with the assistance of telephone interviewers. Households that did not complete their returns via the Internet by a stipulated date were also contacted by telephone interviewers for telephone interviews. The CATI system allowed the telephone interviewer to perform multiple tasks of interviewing, data entry and simple coding simultaneously.

Households were scheduled for face-to-face interviews if they did not respond via Internet and could not be contacted by CATI after several attempts. Those who preferred to provide their information to the trained interviewers could also choose to do so. In the event where the field interviewers failed to contact the respondents in these households, they left appointment slips behind for the respondents to contact the interviewers to schedule a convenient time for an interview.

Unlike the traditional paper and pen approach, the Ultra-Mobile Personal Computer (UMPC) was adopted for field enumeration in Census of Population 2010. The use of technology provided logistic convenience, eliminating the need for printing and transportation of hardcopy survey forms. Automatic branching of questions with consistency checks was also introduced to reduce back-end processing efforts with electronically coded data captured in the field.

Data Processing and Reports

Census returns submitted via the Internet, CATI and field enumeration were captured electronically and updated into the Census database directly without the need for separate data entry back in office. Trained coders performed online computer-assisted coding of data on occupation, industry and education while editors checked on the consistency and completeness of survey returns. The final processing of the census data involved the editing and verification of records to ensure consistency and good quality of the data.

After stringent quality checks and the completion of data processing, multiple aggregated cross-tabulations were generated for analysis of data trends. Statistical reports on specific topics were prepared for public release.

1 MARRIAGE AND FERTILITY

Marital Status

The proportion of singles among the resident population rose from 30 per cent in 2000 to 32 per cent in 2010 (Table 1). This reflected the postponement in marriages and greater tendency for individuals to remain unmarried. The proportion who were either divorced or separated increased from 2.5 per cent in 2000 to 3.3 per cent in 2010. Correspondingly, the proportion of married persons declined from 62 per cent in 2000 to 59 per cent in 2010. Widowed persons accounted for 5.1 per cent of the resident population in 2010.

The proportion of widowed females was significantly higher than the males largely due to their longer life expectancy. The proportion of females who were divorced or separated was also higher than the males.

Proportion of Singles by Age Group

The increase in the proportion of singles between 2000 and 2010 was more prominent for the younger age groups. Among Singapore citizens aged 30-34 years, the proportion of singles rose significantly from 33 per cent to 43 per cent for the males, and from 22 per cent to 31 per cent for the females (Chart 1).

Chart 1 Proportion of Singles by Age Group, Sex and Residential Status

Proportion of Singles by Education Attainment

Singlehood was most prevalent among citizen males with below secondary qualifications and graduate citizen females (Table 2). At age 40-44 years, 24 per cent of citizen males with below secondary qualifications were single in 2010, as compared to 13 per cent of university graduates. For citizen females, 23 per cent of graduates aged 40-44 years were single in 2010, as compared to 11 per cent among females with below secondary qualifications.

Proportion of Singles by Ethnic Group

The Chinese had the highest proportion of singles. In 2010, 18 per cent of Chinese citizen males aged 40-44 years were single, compared to 13 per cent for the Malays and Indians (Table 3). Among Chinese citizen females aged 40-44 years, 18 per cent were single, higher than the Malays (8.2 per cent) and the Indians (11 per cent).

Number of Children Born

There was a continuing delay in family formation, as reflected in the increase in the proportion with no children among ever-married females in their thirties and forties. The proportion who were childless increased from 14 per cent in 2000 to 20 per cent in 2010 among ever-married resident females aged 30-39 years, and from 6.4 per cent to 9.3 per cent among ever-married resident females aged 40-49 years (Chart 2).

Families with only one child showed an increasing trend. Among ever-married females aged 40-49 years who were likely to have completed child-bearing, the proportion with one child increased from 15 per cent in 2000 to 19 per cent in 2010.

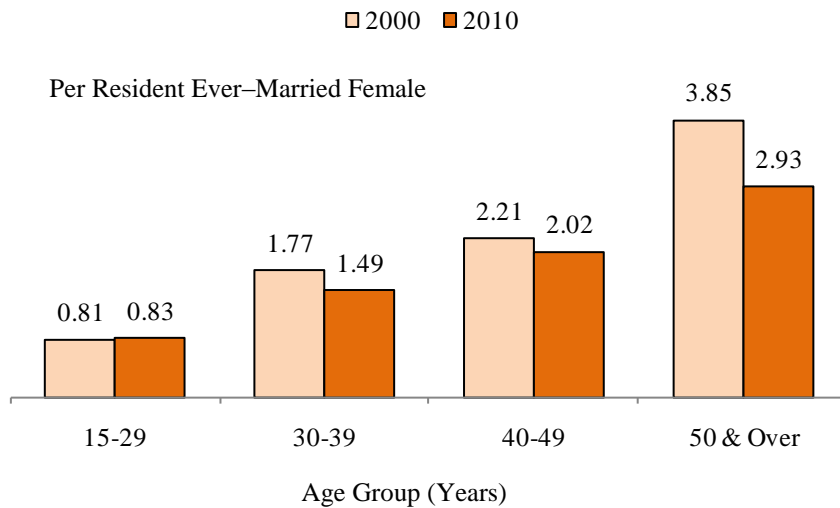

Nonetheless, families with two children continued to be the norm. The proportion of resident ever-married females aged 40-49 years who had given birth to two children was 42 per cent in 2010, unchanged from 2000. Among those aged 30-39 years, 36 per cent had given birth to two children.

Chart 2 Resident Ever-Married Females by Age Group and Number of Children Born

With more ever-married females remaining childless or having one child, the average number of children born to resident ever-married females declined for most age groups. Among those aged 40-49 years, the average number of children born declined from 2.21 in 2000 to 2.02 in 2010 (Chart 3).

Chart 3 Average Number of Children Born to Resident Ever-Married Females by Age Group

Average Number of Children Born by Education Attainment

Higher educated females had fewer children than lower educated females on average. University graduates had the fewest children by the end of their child-bearing years, with an average of 1.74 children among ever-married graduates aged 40-49 years in 2010 (Table 4). In contrast, the average number of children born was 2.21 for ever-married females aged 40-49 years with below secondary qualifications.

Average Number of Children Born by Ethnic Group

The Malays continued to have the largest family size, followed by the Indians and the Chinese. Resident ever-married Malay females aged 40-49 years had an average of 2.73 children in 2010, higher than the Indians (2.05) and Chinese (1.89) (Table 5). The decline in the average number of children between 2000 and 2010 for this age group was also smaller for the Malays than the Chinese and Indians.

2 EDUCATION, LITERACY AND HOME LANGUAGE

Education Profile

The education profile of the resident population improved significantly between 2000 and 2010. Some 49 per cent of the non-student population aged 15 years and over in 2010 had at least post-secondary qualifications, up from 33 per cent in 2000 (Table 1). The share of university graduates also increased significantly from 12 per cent in 2000 to 23 per cent in 2010.

All ethnic groups among the resident population aged 15 years and over were better educated than before. The proportion with at least post-secondary qualifications increased from 35 per cent in 2000 to 48 per cent in 2010 among the Chinese, from 18 per cent to 36 per cent among the Malays and from 35 per cent to 60 per cent among the Indians.

Literacy had improved, in tandem with the improvement in education profile of the resident population. In 2010, 96 per cent of those aged 15 years and over were literate, up from 93 per cent in 2000 (Table 3).

Among literate residents aged 15 years and over, 80 per cent were literate in English in 2010, up from 71 per cent in 2000. Literacy in two or more languages also rose from 56 per cent in 2000 to 71 per cent in 2010.

Between 2000 and 2010, the proportion of Christians increased among residents with secondary or below qualifications. However, the proportion of Christians declined among those with at least post-secondary qualifications. Christians remained the largest religious group among university graduates in 2010 at 32 per cent.

The proportion of Muslims increased among residents with secondary and above education between 2000 and 2010. The proportion of Hindus also increased among residents with at least post-secondary qualifications.

Type of Dwelling

A dwelling refers to a building, part of a building, or a covered space used or intended to be used by one or more persons as living quarters. Each dwelling has its own separate entrance with direct access to a public road or pathway. A dwelling may be a residential building by itself, or a unit in a residential building, or part of a non-residential building such as a shop or factory with space used as living quarters.

Dwellings are broadly classified into the following three categories: Housing and Development Board (HDB) flats, condominiums and private flats, and landed properties.

Sample Design and Sampling Variability

Introduction

The Census of Population 2010 adopted a register-based approach, similar to the Census of Population 2000. Basic population count and characteristics were compiled from administrative sources. Additional information not available from administrative data sources were collected from a sample survey of about 200,000 dwelling units.

Sample Design and Selection

The sampling frame used for the selection of the sample for Census 2010 is based on the National Database of Dwellings (NDD) maintained by DOS. The NDD is a register of all residential dwelling units in Singapore. As the sample survey of the Census 2010 covered only households in residential dwellings, institutions such as military camps, hostels and hotels were excluded from the frame.

The sample for the Census 2010 was selected based on a stratified design with proportional allocation. The strata were defined based on the planning areas demarcated by the Urban Redevelopment Authority. Each dwelling unit in the frame was first placed into one of the strata based on its planning area. Within each stratum, the units were sorted into dwelling type groupings. A sample was selected using simple random sampling without replacement from each broad dwelling type grouping. The selected samples across the strata were combined to form the required sample of about 200,000 dwelling units.

Sampling Variability

The precision of estimates derived from the sample survey are affected by sampling errors since the estimates are based on information obtained from a fraction of the population instead of the whole population. Sampling errors refer to the difference between the estimate based on a sample and its 'true' population value that would result if the whole population has been surveyed.

The extent of sampling error of an estimate under a particular sample design is assessed by the variability of the estimate across all possible samples under the design. One common measure of this variability is given by the standard error (SE), which is the standard deviation of the sampling distribution of the estimate. Another measure is the relative standard error (RSE), which is obtained by expressing the standard error as a percentage to the estimate. The smaller the RSE, the more precise is the estimate.

Computation of Sampling Error

The sampling errors of the estimates under the actual sample design used can be derived based on their relationship with those under a simple random sample (SRS) design. The formula for standard error of  $T_Y$  based on simple random sample is:

$$\begin{aligned}
 SE(T_Y; SRS) &= \sqrt{\text{Var}(T_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= \sqrt{\text{Var}(N \times P_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= N \times \sqrt{\text{Var}(P_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= N \times SE(P_Y; SRS) \\
 &= N \times \sqrt{\frac{N-n}{N-1} \times \frac{P_Y(1-P_Y)}{n}}
 \end{aligned}$$

where  $T_Y$  is the total number of elements in the population with a given attribute Y

$N$  is the total population count

$n$  is the count of persons covered in the sample

$P_Y$  is the proportion of the total population with a given attribute

The ratio of the variance of the estimate based on the sample design used and that of a simple random sample of the same size is known as the “design effect” (DEFF). This ratio gives the net effect of the various complexities of the design used on the variance relative to a simple random sample design. The square root of the design effect (DEFT) gives the ratio of the standard error of the estimate under the sample design used to that of a simple random sample:

$$\text{DEFT}(T_Y) = \sqrt{\text{DEFF}(T_Y)} = \sqrt{\frac{\text{Var}(T_Y)}{\text{Var}(T_Y; SRS)}} = \frac{SE(T_Y)}{SE(T_Y; SRS)}$$

This implies that

$$\begin{aligned}
 SE(T_Y) &= \text{DEFT}(T_Y) \times SE(T_Y; SRS) \\
 &= \text{DEFT}(P_Y) \times SE(T_Y; SRS), \quad \text{since } T_Y = N \times P_Y.

Generalized Sampling Errors Table

From Table A1, the DEFT of the selected attributes ( $T_Y$ ) is about 1. It is impractical to compute and display the sampling error for each and every of the possible estimates such as the total number of elements in the population with a given attribute Y from the Census 2010. Thus, a generalized sampling errors table is provided instead as a guide to data users for estimating the errors of any estimates.

Table A2 provides the generalised sampling errors of a selected range of estimates with DEFT value of 1. The smaller the estimate, the larger is the RSE. This implies that sample estimates of a rare characteristic would have high RSEs and users would have to be careful in drawing inferences based on the sample estimates.

Table A1 Sampling Errors and DEFT of  $T_Y$  for Selected Attributes

	Sample Estimate ( $T_Y$ )	Standard Error ( $T_Y$ )	Relative Standard Error ( $T_Y$ )	95% Confidence Interval		DEFT ( $T_Y$ )
