PREFACE

The Census of Population 2010 was the fifth census carried out in Singapore since Independence and the fourteenth in the series of census taking in Singapore. The census is the most comprehensive source of information on population and households. It provides benchmark data for all demographic, economic and social statistics.

The Census 2010 adopted a register-based approach, similar to the Census of Population 2000. Basic population count and characteristics were compiled from administrative sources. More detailed information on demographic, education, economic, transport, household and housing characteristics were obtained from a sample enumeration of about 200,000 households.

As in the conduct of the Census 2000, a tri-modal collection strategy comprising Internet, Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews was adopted to facilitate data collection for the households in the census sample. The Census 2010 went paperless during the face-to-face interviews, with the use of Ultra-Mobile Personal Computers (UMPCs) to assist data collection. This data collection methodology brought about savings in manpower, data security in the field, as well as improvements in quality and timeliness of data.

The Census of Population 2010 Statistical Release 2 – Households and Housing is the second release of a series of statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes relating to household and housing characteristics of resident households since 2000. The report includes detailed statistical tables to enable more comprehensive study by users as well as a glossary of census concepts and definitions.

I would like to thank all who have, in one way or another, contributed to the success of Census 2010. My deep appreciation is extended to all participating households who had given their full support to the Census 2010. The contributions of many government ministries and statutory boards, which provided pertinent information for the Census 2010, are gratefully acknowledged.

Introduction

INTRODUCTION

The Census of Population, Singapore's largest national statistical exercise, is conducted once in ten years by the Singapore Department of Statistics. The Census of Population 2010 was the fifth census after Singapore's Independence, and the fourteenth in the series of census taking in Singapore.

The Census of Population 2010 Statistical Release 2 – Households and Housing is the second release of a series of statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes relating to household and housing characteristics of resident households since 2000. The report includes detailed statistical tables to enable more comprehensive study by users as well as a glossary of census concepts and definitions.

Census of Population – Concept and Coverage

The Census of Population 2010 adopted the de jure concept for Singapore's population estimates based on a person's place of usual residence. Under the de jure concept of "usual residence", Singapore residents (citizens and permanent residents) with local addresses and who were not away from Singapore for a continuous period of 12 months or longer were included in the total population count. The non-resident population comprising foreigners who were working, studying or living in Singapore but not granted permanent residence were also included in the total population. The transient population such as tourists and short-term visitors was excluded.

Register-based Census of Population

In the register-based Census, the basic population statistics were compiled using administrative records from multiple sources. The merged administrative records provided the basic population count and characteristics such as age, sex, ethnic group, place of birth, type of dwelling and geographic distribution in Singapore.

Sample Enumeration

To collect additional information not available from administrative sources, some 200,000 households were selected to participate in the sample enumeration. Building on the success and lessons learnt from the Census of Population 2000, a tri-modal data collection strategy comprising Internet enumeration, Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews was adopted to facilitate data collection for the households in the sample.

The option of Internet enumeration was made available to all households selected for the census sample enumeration. Available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, Internet enumeration provided respondents with the flexibility of responding at any time they desired. It allowed respondents to provide their survey returns directly to the system without having to go through a third party, i.e. the interviewer.

Respondents, who were not able to complete their returns via the Internet, had the option to provide their returns over the phone with the assistance of telephone interviewers. Households that did not complete their returns via the Internet by a stipulated date were also contacted by telephone interviewers for telephone interviews. The CATI system allowed the telephone interviewer to perform multiple tasks of interviewing, data entry and simple coding simultaneously.

Households were scheduled for face-to-face interviews if they did not respond via Internet and could not be contacted by CATI after several attempts. Those who preferred to provide their information to the trained interviewers could also choose to do so. In the event where the field interviewers failed to contact the respondents in these households, they left appointment slips behind for the respondents to contact the interviewers to schedule a convenient time for an interview.

Unlike the traditional paper and pen approach, the Ultra-Mobile Personal Computer (UMPC) was adopted for field enumeration in Census of Population 2010. The use of technology provided logistic convenience, eliminating the need for printing and transportation of hardcopy survey forms. Automatic branching of questions with consistency checks was also introduced to reduce back-end processing efforts with electronically coded data captured in the field.

Data Processing and Reports

Census returns submitted via the Internet, CATI and field enumeration were captured electronically and updated into the Census database directly without the need for separate data entry back in office. Trained coders performed online computer-assisted coding of data on occupation, industry and education while editors checked on the consistency and completeness of survey returns. The final processing of the census data involved the editing and verification of records to ensure consistency and good quality of the data.

After stringent quality checks and the completion of data processing, multiple aggregated cross-tabulations were generated for analysis of data trends. Statistical reports on specific topics were prepared for public release.

1 HOUSEHOLD SIZE AND STRUCTURE

Household Size by Ethnic Group

In 2010, there were 1.15 million resident households, up from 0.92 million in 2000. Households with 3 or fewer persons constituted a growing share of resident households. The proportion of one-person households increased from 8.2 per cent in 2000 to 12 per cent in 2010 (Table 1). The proportion of resident households with 2 or 3 persons also increased from 36 per cent in 2000 to 39 per cent in 2010. The average household size declined from 3.7 persons in 2000 to 3.5 persons in 2010.

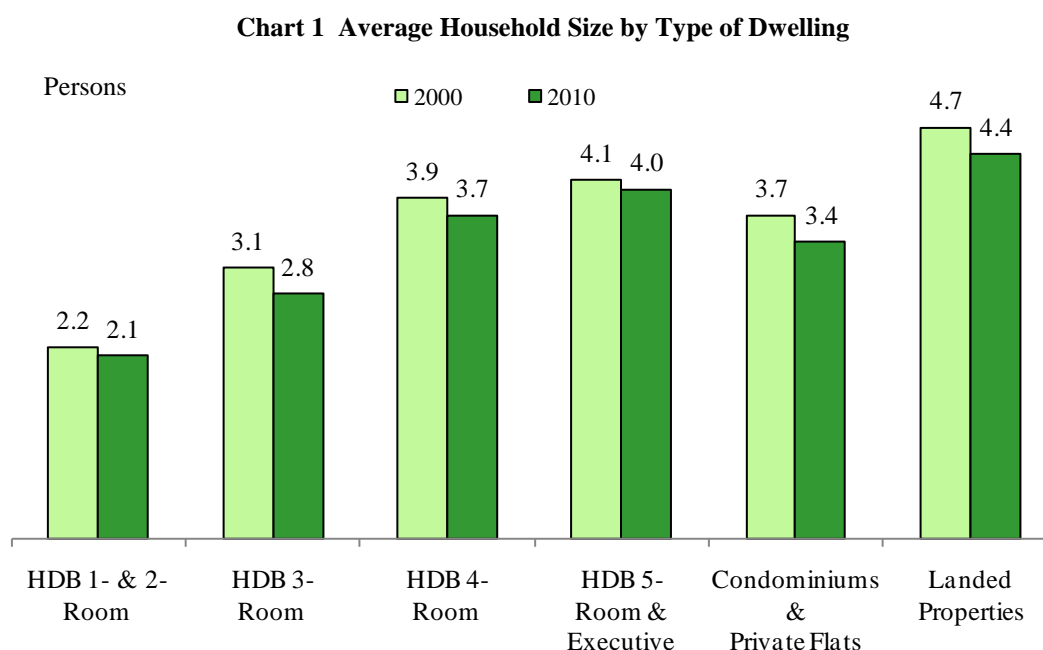

The shift towards smaller households was most prominent for Chinese households. The proportion of Chinese households with fewer than 4 members increased from 46 per cent in 2000 to 54 per cent in 2010. The corresponding increase was lower among Malay households from 34 per cent to 36 per cent and Indian households from 45 per cent to 48 per cent. Average household size was the largest for Malay households at 4.2 persons, followed by the Indian households at 3.6 persons and Chinese households at 3.4 persons.

Household Size by Housing Type

Average household size declined for all housing types. Average household size was larger for bigger housing types. For HDB flats in 2010, average household size was lowest among HDB 1- and 2-room flat dwellers (2.1 persons) and highest among HDB 5-room and Executive flat dwellers (4.0 persons) (Chart 1). For private housing, average household size was 3.4 persons among resident households in condominiums and private flats and 4.4 persons among resident households staying in landed properties.

Profile of One-Person Households

The proportion of one-person households among resident households had grown since 2000. Compared to 2000, a higher proportion of these one-person households stayed in bigger housing types such as HDB 4-room flats (20 per cent), HDB 5-room and Executive flats (11 per cent) and condominiums and private flats (14 per cent) in 2010 (Table 2).

When compared with resident households with two or more persons in 2010, a higher proportion of one-person households were single (57 per cent), divorced or separated (14 per cent) or widowed (14 per cent). Proportionately more one-person households were staying in HDB 1- and 2-room flats (15 per cent), HDB 3-room flats (36 per cent) and condominiums and private flats (14 per cent) than resident households with two or more persons.

Households by Household Living Arrangement

Households comprising married couples accounted for 70 per cent of resident households in 2010, a decline from 74 per cent in 2000 (Table 3). Resident households with no family nucleus comprised about 17 per cent in 2010, up from 12 per cent in 2000. They included one-person households and households formed by unrelated persons.

With the ageing of the population, resident households comprising older couples increased between 2000 and 2010. Resident households with married heads aged 50 years and over accounted for 34 per cent in 2010, up from 26 per cent in 2000.

The proportion of resident households comprising only elderly members increased from 2.7 per cent in 2000 to 4.6 per cent in 2010.

2 HOUSING TYPE AND HOME OWNERSHIP

Housing Type by Ethnic Group

Reflecting the rising affluence of the population, more resident households were staying in bigger housing types in 2010 compared to 2000. The proportion of resident households staying in condominiums and private flats increased from 6.3 per cent in 2000 to 11 per cent in 2010 (Table 1). Conversely, the proportion of resident households staying in HDB 3-room or smaller flats fell from 31 per cent in 2000 to 25 per cent in 2010. HDB 4-room flats remained the most common housing type for resident households in 2010 at 32 per cent.

Between 2000 and 2010, all ethnic groups showed an increase in the proportion occupying HDB 4-room or larger flats or private housing. The proportion increased from 69 per cent to 75 per cent among Chinese households, 65 per cent to 69 per cent among Malay households and 66 per cent to 73 per cent among Indian households.

Home Ownership by Ethnic Group

The number of households who owned their homes rose from 841,600 in 2000 to 998,900 in 2010. Such households formed 87 per cent of resident households in 2010 (Table 2). About 90 per cent of Chinese and Malay households owned their homes in 2010.

3 HOUSEHOLD INCOME TRENDS

Household Income Growth

Resident households enjoyed growth in income from work between 2000 and 2010. The median household income from work increased from $3,640 to $5,000 at an average annual rate of 3.2 per cent (1.6 per cent in real terms) (Table 1).

Median Household Income	3,638	5,000	3.2	1.6

Growth in household income from work among resident households was not uniform over the last decade. Median household income from work declined in 2002 and 2003, recovered in 2004 and continued to grow till 2009 where there was a drop of 1.9 per cent (Chart 1). Income growth resumed following the economic recovery in 2010, with median household income from work growing by 3.1 per cent between 2009 and 2010.

Chart 1 Annual Change in Monthly Household Income from Work Among Resident Households

Households by Household Income Groups

Compared with 2000, a higher proportion of resident households earned higher income in 2010. The proportion of resident households earning at least $6,000 increased from 27 per cent in 2000 to 43 per cent in 2010 (Table 2). The proportion of resident households earning at least $15,000 more than doubled from 4.1 per cent in 2000 to 10 per cent in 2010.

There was an increase in the proportion of resident households with no working person from 8.6 per cent in 2000 to 10 per cent in 2010. This reflected the ageing population and the increase in resident households with older couples.

Between 2000 and 2010, median household income from work grew by 2.8 per cent per annum (1.1 per cent in real terms) for the Chinese, 3.6 per cent per annum (1.9 per cent in real terms) for the Malays and 4.6 per cent per annum (2.9 per cent in real terms) for the Indians (Table 3).

4 MARRIED COUPLES IN RESIDENT HOUSEHOLDS

Working Status of Married Couples

The number of married couples increased from 728,200 in 2000 to 880,800 in 2010. The traditional arrangement where only the husband worked was less prevalent, with the proportion declining from 40 per cent in 2000 to 33 per cent in 2010 (Chart 1). The proportion of married couples where both husband and wife worked accounted for 47 per cent in 2010, up from 41 per cent in 2000.

Chart 1 Married Couples in Resident Households by Working Status of Couple

Income from Work of Married Couples

Excluding couples where both husband and wife were not working, the median monthly income from work of couples had risen over the period from 2000 to 2010. Median monthly income from work of couples where both husband and wife were working was $6,820 in 2010, higher than couples where only the husband or the wife was working ($3,370 and $2,000 respectively) (Table 1).

Highest Qualification Attained of Married Couples

Between 2000 and 2010, the proportion of husbands with wives of lower qualifications had declined from 38 per cent to 34 per cent (Table 2). There were more couples where wives were of the same educational qualification (44 per cent) or were higher educated (22 per cent).

The majority of husbands with university qualification married wives with university qualification. Among husbands with university qualification, 64 per cent had spouses with university qualification in 2010, up from 52 per cent in 2000. The majority of husbands with no qualification also had wives with no qualification at 65 per cent in 2010, down from 73 per cent in 2000.

In comparison, 49 - 58 per cent of husbands with post-secondary, diploma or professional qualification had wives with lower education qualification in 2010.

HOUSEHOLD AND HOUSING CHARACTERISTICS

Household

A household refers to a group of two or more persons living together in the same house and sharing common food or other arrangements for essential living. It also includes a person living alone or a person living with others but having his own food arrangements. Although persons may be living in the same house, they may not be members of the same household.

Resident Household

A resident household refers to a household headed by a Singapore citizen or permanent resident.

Head of Household

The head of a household is the person generally acknowledged as such by other members of the household. The head is normally the oldest member, the main income earner, the owner-occupier of the house or the person who manages the affairs of the household. Where the household comprises a group of unrelated persons, the head of household refers to the person who manages the affairs of the household, or any person who supplied the information pertaining to other members.

Household Structure

Household structure refers to the classification of a household according to the number of family nuclei and the number of generations in the household.

One Family Nucleus	This refers to a household formed by one of the following, regardless of the number of generations:  (a) a married couple, with or without never-married child(ren); (b) a family consisting of immediate related members, without presence of a married couple e.g. one parent only with never-married child(ren).
Two Family Nuclei	This refers to a household with two family nuclei.
Three or More Family Nuclei	This refers to a household with three or more family nuclei.
No Family Nucleus	This refers to a household formed by a person living alone or living with others but does not constitute any family nucleus. This is further classified into one-person household or household with more than one person.

Household Living Arrangement

Household living arrangement refers to the classification of a household according to the household composition, age and marital status of household head and age group of the youngest child of the head. There are two broad types of households:

Family-Based Households            This refers to households with at least one family nucleus.

Non-Family-Based Households            This refers to households with no family nucleus.

Within the family-based households, couple-based households refer to those with a married head and spouse in the household. Other family-based households refer to those without a married head and spouse in the household, e.g. lone parent households.

Household size refers to the total number of members in the household, including maids.

Number of Working Persons in Household

The number of working persons in the household includes members of the same household who are working. Maids in the household are excluded.

Household Income from Work

Household income from work refers to the sum of income received by working members of the household from employment and business. However, it does not include the income of maids.

Household Income from Work Per Household Member

Household income from work per household member refers to the household income from work divided by the total number of members (household size) in the household. For example, if only one person in a household of four is working, his income is divided by four to derive the average income per household member.

Predominant Household Language

Predominant household language refers to the language or dialect spoken by the majority of household members to other members, excluding maids and unrelated persons.

Elderly Living Arrangement

Elderly persons aged 65 years and over are classified according to their co-residence with their spouse or children. Additional dimension on the economic status of the children is incorporated into the classification.

With At Least One Working Child This refers to an elderly person living with his children in the same household, at least one of whom is working.

With All Non-Working Children This refers to an elderly person living with his children in the same household, all of whom are not working.

Type of Dwelling

A dwelling refers to a building, part of a building, or a covered space used or intended to be used by one or more persons as living quarters. Each dwelling has its own separate entrance with direct access to a public road or pathway. A dwelling may be a residential building by itself, or a unit in a residential building, or part of a non-residential building such as a shop or factory with space used as living quarters.

Dwellings are broadly classified into the following three categories: Housing and Development Board (HDB) flats, condominiums and private flats, and landed properties.

Tenancy

Tenancy refers to the tenure status of the household with respect to the dwelling in which the household members live. Tenancy is classified into the following three categories:

Owner This refers to a household where the head or any other member owns the house.

Tenant This refers to a household which rents the dwelling or part of it.

Others This refers to a household which occupies a dwelling provided without charge by employers, friends or relatives.

Sample Design and Sampling Variability

Introduction

The Census of Population 2010 adopted a register-based approach, similar to the Census of Population 2000. Basic population count and characteristics were compiled from administrative sources. Additional information not available from administrative data sources were collected from a sample survey of about 200,000 dwelling units.

Sample Design and Selection

The sampling frame used for the selection of the sample for Census 2010 is based on the National Database of Dwellings (NDD) maintained by DOS. The NDD is a register of all residential dwelling units in Singapore. As the sample survey of the Census 2010 covered only households in residential dwellings, institutions such as military camps, hostels and hotels were excluded from the frame.

The sample for the Census 2010 was selected based on a stratified design with proportional allocation. The strata were defined based on the planning areas demarcated by the Urban Redevelopment Authority. Each dwelling unit in the frame was first placed into one of the strata based on its planning area. Within each stratum, the units were sorted into dwelling type groupings. A sample was selected using simple random sampling without replacement from each broad dwelling type grouping. The selected samples across the strata were combined to form the required sample of about 200,000 dwelling units.

Sampling Variability

The precision of estimates derived from the sample survey are affected by sampling errors since the estimates are based on information obtained from a fraction of the population instead of the whole population. Sampling errors refer to the difference between the estimate based on a sample and its „true“ population value that would result if the whole population has been surveyed.

The extent of sampling error of an estimate under a particular sample design is assessed by the variability of the estimate across all possible samples under the design. One common measure of this variability is given by the standard error (SE), which is the standard deviation of the sampling distribution of the estimate. Another measure is the relative standard error (RSE), which is obtained by expressing the standard error as a percentage to the estimate. The smaller the RSE, the more precise is the estimate.

Computation of Sampling Error

The sampling errors of the estimates under the actual sample design used can be derived based on their relationship with those under a simple random sample (SRS) design. The formula for standard error of  $T_Y$  based on simple random sample is:

$$\begin{aligned}
 SE(T_Y; SRS) &= \sqrt{\text{Var}(T_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= \sqrt{\text{Var}(N \times P_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= N \times \sqrt{\text{Var}(P_Y; SRS)} \\
 &= N \times SE(P_Y; SRS) \\
 &= N \times \sqrt{\frac{N-n}{N-1} \times \frac{P_Y(1-P_Y)}{n}}
 \end{aligned}$$

where  $T_Y$  is the total number of elements in the population with a given attribute Y
 $N$  is the total population count
 $n$  is the count of persons covered in the sample
 $P_Y$  is the proportion of the total population with a given attribute

The ratio of the variance of the estimate based on the sample design used and that of a simple random sample of the same size is known as the “design effect” (DEFF). This ratio gives the net effect of the various complexities of the design used on the variance relative to a simple random sample design. The square root of the design effect (DEFT) gives the ratio of the standard error of the estimate under the sample design used to that of a simple random sample:

$$\text{DEFT}(T_Y) = \sqrt{\text{DEFF}(T_Y)} = \sqrt{\frac{\text{Var}(T_Y)}{\text{Var}(T_Y; SRS)}} = \frac{SE(T_Y)}{SE(T_Y; SRS)}$$

This implies that

$$\begin{aligned}
 SE(T_Y) &= \text{DEFT}(T_Y) \times SE(T_Y; SRS) \\
 &= \text{DEFT}(P_Y) \times SE(T_Y; SRS), \quad \text{since } T_Y = N \times P_Y.

Generalized Sampling Errors Table

From Table A1, the DEFT of the selected attributes ( $T_Y$ ) is about 1. It is impractical to compute and display the sampling error for each and every of the possible estimates such as the total number of elements in the population with a given attribute Y from the Census 2010. Thus, a generalized sampling errors table is provided instead as a guide to data users for estimating the errors of any estimates.

Table A2 provides the generalised sampling errors of a selected range of estimates with DEFT value of 1. The smaller the estimate, the larger is the RSE. This implies that sample estimates of a rare characteristic would have high RSEs and users would have to be careful in drawing inferences based on the sample estimates.
